APPAREL FASTENER

INTRODUCTION

The Apparel Fastener Brand Guidelines establish the visual principles that shape how the brand is expressed across every touchpoint — from a woven label stitched inside a jacket to the signage that welcomes partners into our offices in Hong Kong, Guangzhou and Lahore.

Built around precision, reliability and quiet confidence, the system provides one consistent framework for applying the identity across physical and digital environments. The logo, colour palette, typography and graphic language are designed to work together as one cohesive visual language.

These guidelines are not intended to restrict creativity. They are the foundation from which Apparel Fastener can grow while remaining recognisable, considered and distinctly AF.

LOGO & IDENTITY SYSTEM

The Apparel Fastener identity is built around a relationship between symbol, wordmark, proportion, space and structure. The logo should always appear with the same sense of precision and engineering that defines every product we make.

The identity is not intended to be manipulated for individual applications. Its strength comes from maintaining a consistent visual relationship across every touchpoint.

APPAREL FASTENER

Logo System

The Apparel Fastener Mark

The identity is built from two connected elements: the AF emblem and the APPAREL FASTENER wordmark.

The emblem is derived from the initials of the name — a rounded a for Apparel and a structured F for Fastener — brought together so closely that they read as one engineered component.

Together, the emblem and wordmark create the primary expression of the brand. The emblem may also exist independently as a recognisable signature on hardware, labels, digital profiles and other small-format applications.

THE EMBLEM PHILOSOPHY

The form is built around the idea of two parts becoming one — exactly what a fastener does. A soft, rounded form meets a rigid, stepped form, and the narrow channel between them is held with absolute precision.

The geometry carries a deliberate tension between softness and structure. The curve represents fabric, comfort and the garment. The bars represent hardware, engineering and strength.

Together, they create a symbol that communicates:

Precision Connection Strength Integrity Reliability Craft

The emblem is therefore not simply an abbreviation of Apparel Fastener.
It is a visual interpretation of what the business does.

Emblem Anatomy

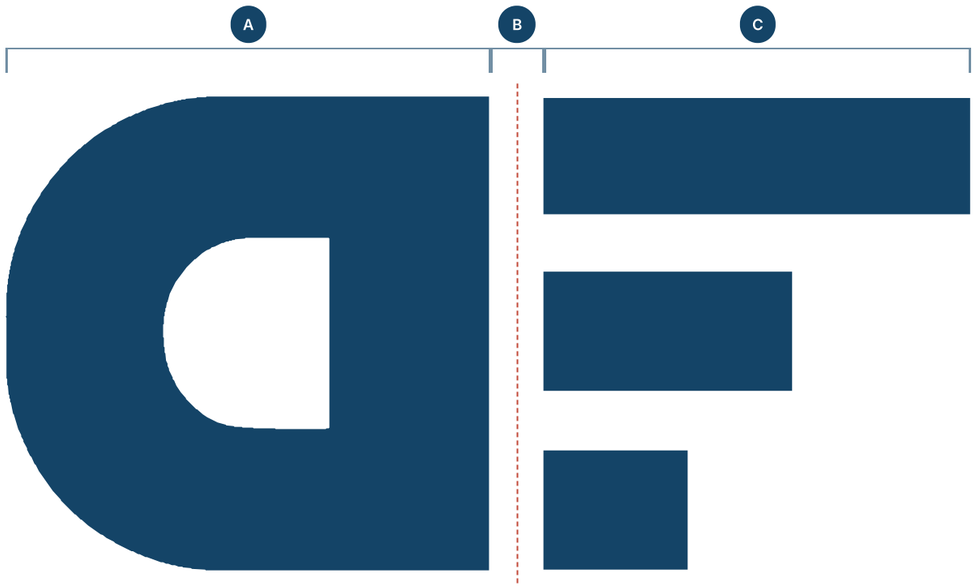

Two parts. One fastening.

Every part of the emblem has a role. Read from left to right, it tells the story of a garment being held together.

A The Bowl — Apparel
A rounded lowercase a. Its soft outer curve recalls the drape of fabric and the profile of a button.

B The Seam
The narrow, constant channel between the two letters. It is the point where two parts meet — the line every fastener exists to close.

C The Bars — Fastener
A stepped F of three solid bars that shorten in rhythm, like the teeth of a zip or layered tape.

F — Fastener

THE WORDMARK

The wordmark APPAREL FASTENER provides the verbal foundation of the identity.

Where the emblem expresses the brand through form, the wordmark establishes recognition through language. Its wide, geometric capitals are evenly weighted and openly spaced — calm, legible and confident at any distance.

Together, they create a deliberate relationship:

The emblem represents the connection.
The wordmark names it.

The relationship between the two should remain controlled and proportional across every application, so the identity keeps its recognition regardless of scale or environment.

APPAREL

Logo Usage

One Identity. Different Expressions.

EMBLEM

AF Symbol
Used independently where a compact brand signature is required — zip pullers, buttons, snaps, rivets, woven labels, social profiles, favicons and other small-format executions.

WORDMARK

APPAREL FASTENER

APPAREL FASTENER
Used independently where the typographic expression provides the clearest identification — document footers, carton edges, narrow banners and tape applications.

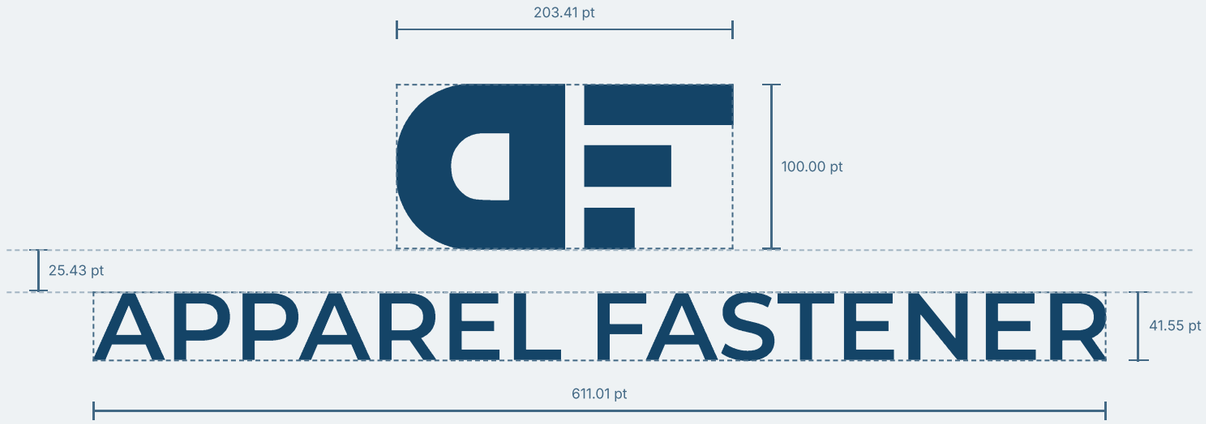

Logo Proportion

Built on Balance

The identity is constructed through a defined relationship between the emblem and the wordmark.

Proportions, spacing and alignment have been established to create a balanced, consistent signature across every application.

The emblem acts as the primary reference point within the construction system. All supporting dimensions are derived proportionally from it, so the identity keeps its integrity when scaled.

ELEMENT	SIZE	RELATIVE TO EMBLEM
Emblem Height	100.00 pt	100%
Emblem Width	203.41 pt	203.41%
Wordmark Height	41.55 pt	41.55%
Wordmark Width	611.01 pt	611.01%
Vertical Gap	25.43 pt	25.43%
Seam Width	11.32 pt	11.32%

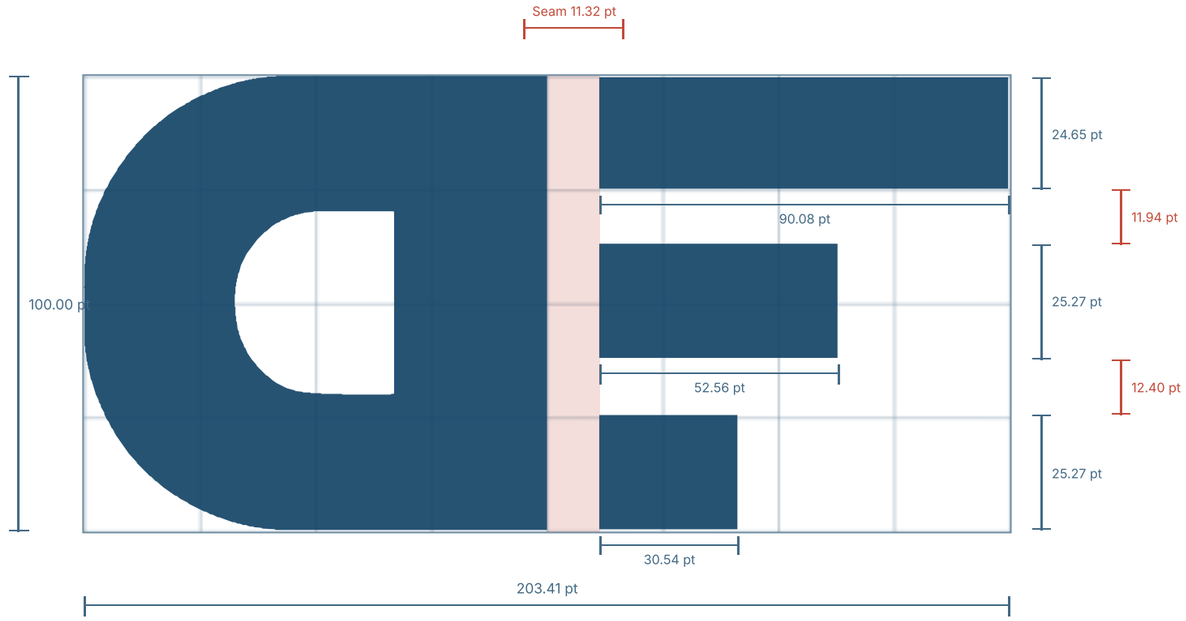

Emblem Construction

Engineered, not drawn.

The emblem is constructed on a strict modular rhythm. The three bars of the F share one height — the module (x) — and are separated by equal channels. Each bar steps down in length, creating forward momentum.

The bowl of the a spans the full height of the emblem, and the seam between the two letters is held at a constant width from top to bottom, the way a well-made fastener closes evenly along its length.

Module (x) Channel Construction grid

Clear Space

Room to breathe.

A minimum clear space must surround the logo at all times, keeping it free from text, graphics, edges and other marks.

The clear space is defined by x — the height of one bar of the F in the emblem. This measurement scales with the logo, so the protected area is always proportional.

Where space allows, more is always better.

x = height of one F bar

Logo Minimum Size

The logo should always remain large enough for the emblem and wordmark to keep their clarity and character. Minimum reproduction size depends on the application, production method and viewing distance.

PRIMARY LOGO MIN. SIZE

Print: width = 25 mm
Digital: width = 120 px

Print A-Formats	Min. width
A6	30 mm
A5	42 mm
A4	50 mm
A3	82 mm
A2	120 mm

EMBLEM ONLY & FAVICON

Print: width = 6 mm · Hardware engraving: 4 mm
Digital: height = 16 px

Logo Integrity

The logo is a precisely constructed identity. Its proportions, spacing and the relationship between its elements must remain consistent in every application. It should never be altered, distorted or decorated in a way that compromises its form.

Do not stretch or compress the logo.

Do not alter the emblem’s proportions.

Do not change the emblem / wordmark ratio.

Do not rearrange the emblem and wordmark.

Do not add shadows, glows or effects.

Do not use unapproved colours.

Do not change the typeface.

Do not rotate or angle the logo.

Logo Colour Versions

Navy on light. White on navy.

The logo exists in two colourways only. The navy logo is used on white and light backgrounds; the white logo is used on Navy and Deep Navy. Choose the version that gives the strongest contrast.

BRAND GUIDELINES

A PALETTE OF QUIET AUTHORITY

Colour establishes the atmosphere of Apparel Fastener. The palette is deliberately restrained — one confident navy and clean white — so that the brand feels dependable, precise and international.

Navy carries trust, depth and engineering. White carries clarity, space and quality. Tints of navy are derived from the primary colour only, never from outside it.

PRIMARY PALETTE

Navy and White establish core recognition and form the foundation of the identity.

SUPPORTING PALETTE

Deep Navy adds depth for backgrounds, covers and premium surfaces.

NEUTRAL PALETTE

Mist and the navy tints create space, structure and calm for layouts, tables and data.

Purposeful colour.
Quiet confidence.
Nothing unnecessary.

Tints & Balance

One colour, many voices.

Tints of AF Navy extend the palette for charts, tables, backgrounds and secondary information — without introducing new colours. Use tints in steps of 20% and keep text on tints at 40% or lighter in navy, on 60% or darker in white.

NAVY TINT SCALE

80%	#436985
60%	#728FA4
40%	#A1B4C2
20%	#D0DAE1
10%	#E8ECF0

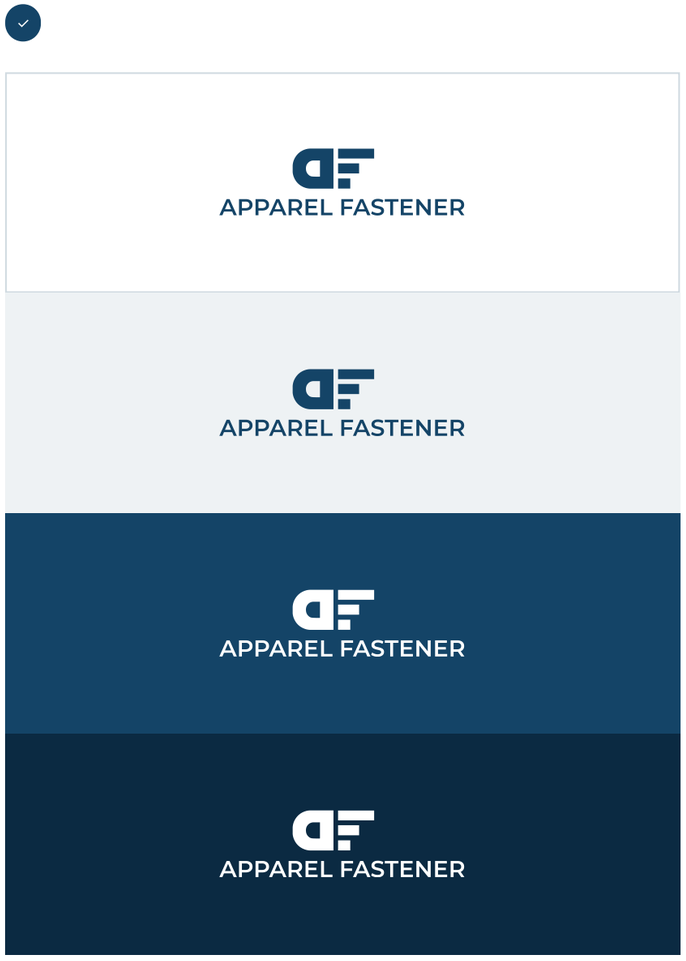

COLOUR RATIO

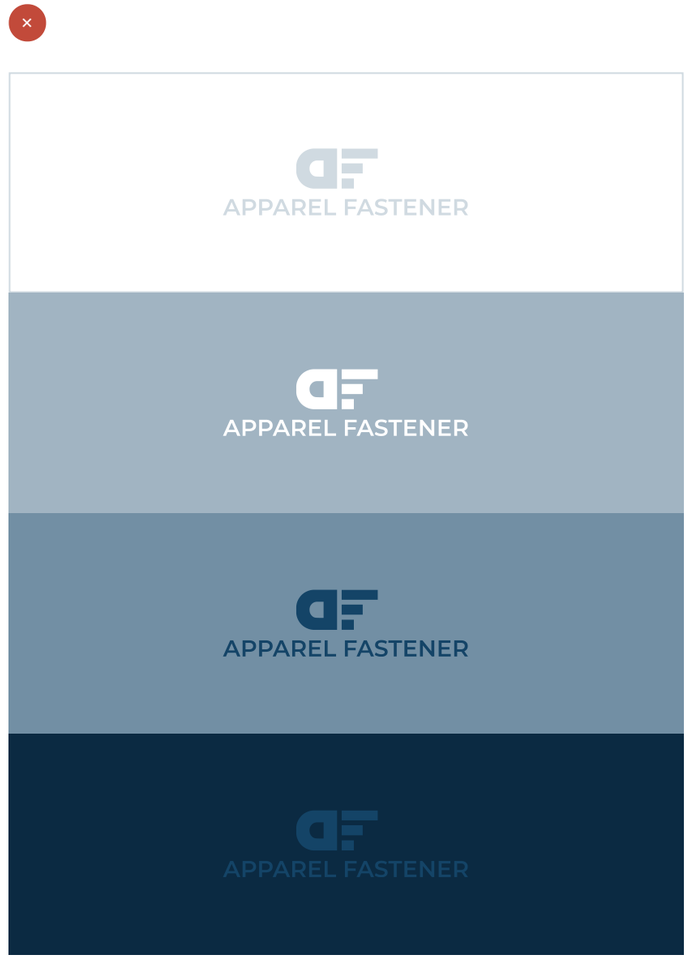

A balanced layout is mostly white and light, anchored by navy, with Deep Navy used sparingly for emphasis. This ratio keeps the brand clean and premium rather than heavy.

Colour Misuse

The colour palette is designed to create a controlled and recognisable visual language. Low-contrast or unapproved colour treatments weaken the identity and disrupt its visual consistency.

Pattern

The emblem, repeated with rhythm.

The brand pattern is built from the emblem in a half-drop repeat. Use it in Mist and 20% tint on light surfaces, or in 80% tint on Navy — for tissue paper, lining prints, polybags, tape and digital backgrounds. Never place the logo directly on top of the pattern.

THE SIGNATURE PULLER

The emblem is designed to live on the product itself. Debossed or enamel-filled on zip pullers, it turns the smallest component into a mark of quality.

Hardware & Trims

The brand at the scale of a button.

On metal and moulded components, use the emblem alone. Apply it centred, at a size that respects the minimum emblem size, in navy enamel, white print or a single-depth deboss.

HANG TAGS & WOVEN LABELS

Tags alternate between navy and white, using either the emblem or a single bold statement. Woven labels carry the full logo, the wordmark or the emblem in a damask weave.

Business Cards

85 × 55 mm · 450 gsm uncoated

The front carries the emblem alone on AF Navy with a subtle twill texture. The reverse is clean white, with the full logo, contact details set in Inter, and a narrow navy strip along the edge — the seam.

Stationery

Letterhead · Envelope · Compliment slip

Correspondence is calm and structured. The logo sits top-left at the defined minimum clear space; office addresses run along the footer in caption style. The reverse of the envelope is printed in solid AF Navy.

Packaging

Cartons, sample boxes & polybags

Packaging uses a two-sided system: a navy face carrying the emblem pattern, and a white face carrying the full logo. Polybags use a light pattern print and a white product sticker set in Inter, prioritising recyclable materials in line with our sustainability goals.

OFFICE SIGNAGE

Reception walls use a solid navy panel with the white logo, mounted 30 mm from the wall. Wayfinding uses white panels with the navy emblem and Inter Medium.

WEBSITE

Digital layouts follow the same balance as print: generous white space, navy for emphasis and the emblem used as a large graphic crop.

Social Media

Consistent, calm, recognisable.

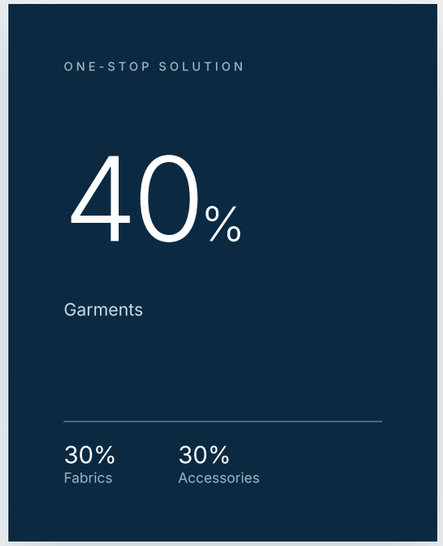

Profile images use the white emblem on AF Navy. Feed posts rotate between three templates — emblem, statement and data — so the grid always keeps its navy-and-white rhythm.
